1:00-3:00pm

Professor Mahmoud El-Kati, editor, and ten scholars, activists, educators, with collectively over hundreds of years in the successful education of students of African descent, address the question of providing a quality education for our youth. These community leaders, based in the Twin Cities/Minnesota, share their thought-provoking literary pieces around this highly charged issue in attempt to help our community wrap their minds around it.

At this session, these three authors will read and discuss their writings...
