In the SPP, the students will complete a 4-year pathway program that includes four remote and virtual activities: a 1-week Transition-to-College bridge program for rising first-year students, a 1-week Introduction to Indigenous Research Methodologies for rising sophomores, a 3-day Pre-Graduate & Research Institute for rising juniors, and a 3-day Graduate Horizons for rising seniors. Throughout the year, students will receive academic coaching and opportunities to engage through a more robust and contiguous Scholars Pathway Program (SPP) to better meet their mentoring, academic, socio-emotional, pre-graduate advising, and research needs.

Program Elements:

• Core Curriculum

- » Academic Success Skills Course
- » Introduction to Settler Colonialism & Critical Race Theory Lecture-based Instruction
- » Indigenous Research Methodologies
- » Wellness: physical, mental and emotional health

• Academic Coaching: Academic coaching is a one-on-one interaction between the academic coach and a student focusing on strengths, goals, study skills, academic planning, and performance. Academic coaches will offer strategies, accountability, and inspiration to help you reach your goals.

• Community & Network: Students can connect with the thriving community of other College Horizons Scholars through Scholars-only Instagram account, Discord server and virtual events. Join a smaller community of CH alumni and build a network of other high-achieving Indigenous college students across 60+ colleges and universities nationwide.

• Students will be prepared to make successful transitions to college, achieve and sustain academic success, and become high achievers who will be competitive for fellowships, internships, graduate/professional schools, and career opportunities.

Co-Curricular Skill Building and Socio-Cultural Resilience: Students will further develop their academic skills by learning success strategies that will include topics such as mindset, resilience, interdependence, as well as traditional academic skills including note-taking, test preparation, study strategies, and time management. In addition to teaching academic preparation, the Scholars Program will help develop skills around resiliency and understanding the intersectionality of race, ethnicity, gender and tribal citizenship in higher education. Students will engage in reflection and discussion of the kinds of socio-cultural challenges they may encounter at selective colleges and universities—especially at predominantly white institutions (PWIs)—and strategies for overcoming those challenges.

The Scholars Program uses holistic and Indigenous frameworks to prepare students in their mental, physical, cultural and spiritual development. Our goal is to strengthen students with the tools to becoming critically conscious of the higher educational structural inequalities by addressing settler colonialism, racism, decolonization, racial equity, transformative resistance, social justice and healing.
